ANCESTRY OF DR. SCOTT BURRILL PARSONS

Research by Nancy Parsons Stoutz Hultquist, Ann Arbor, Michigan

Dr. Scott Burrill Parsons was born in Orono, Maine, in 1842 and died in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1900. He practiced medicine in St. Louis where he served as Chief of Staff at the hospital that is now a part of Washington University. A son (Dr. Scott Elijah Parsons) and granddaughter (Jane Parsons Stoutz) passed on a fascinating oral history to great-granddaughter Nancy Parsons Stoutz Hultquist. As a very young man, before the start of the Civil War, Scott Burrill ran away to sea. He sailed throughout Eastern Asia and returned with a fine collection of art. Oral family history indicated that this amiable young man with twinkling eyes was descended from pre-colonial American settlers.

Progress in finding Dr. Parsons' ancestors was slow until his parents were identified as Elijah Graves Parsons and Octavia Jane Perry of Orono, Maine. However, in the past year extensive progress has been made in following his ancestry. Research in Maine and Massachusetts identified Dr. Parsons' fraternal grandparents as Susanna Graves and Major Nathan Parsons (a "hero of the American Revolution") and identified his maternal grandparents as Jane Stanwood and Deacon John Perry.

Many ancestors of Nathan Parsons, Susanna Graves, John Perry and Jane Stanwood have been identified as having emigrated during the Great Migration from Southern England to New England, primarily to the Connecticut River Valley. The list of these direct ancestors includes the following 47 surnames: Bartlett, Bett, Bliss, Burt, Carpenter, Carter, Chard, Child, Church, Clapp, Clarke, Cooke, Crow, Deane, Dwight, Flynt, Ford, Goodwin, Graves, Hoar, Holton Hulins, Ide, Lyman, Marsh, Mather, Morris, Mun, Osborne, Parsons, Partridge, Perry, Plumb, Pomeroy, Redway, Rockett, Smith, Stanwood, Stebbins, Strong, Titus, Walker, Whipple, Whiting, Wood, Woodward, and Wright.

Many of these immigrating families have been traced backward several generations in England and a few families have been traced a great number of generations. The family of Lt. John Lyman (1623-1690), who was a direct ancestor of Susanna Graves, has been traced by others to the early Lambert and DeUmfreville families. The genealogy of William Carpenter (1601-1697), who was a direct ancestor of John Perry, has likewise been studied by others. The databases follow several branches of William Carpenter's family through the nobility of England, France, Sweden, and Denmark to antiquity.

The intended modest search for the family roots of Scott Burrill Parsons has generated a great volume of information. One wonders to what extent the young man with the love for sailing, adventure, art, and surgery was aware of the long route by which his genes had first criss-crossed the Baltic Sea and then traveled across the Atlantic Ocean.

WE'VE FOUND THAT GREAT-GREAT-GREAT-GRANDFATHER, MICAJAH WYATT (1752-1826)

Research by Maryilynn Dickerson, Ann Arbor, Michigan

No one remembered who George Benton Wyatt's parents were. He was born in 1841, married in 1864 in Hendricks County, Indiana, to Emaline Bendrix, and died in Jamestown, Boone County, Indiana, in 1916. Parents were not named on the marriage record, nor any indication of a birthplace. The only other known fact was that he had a brother, Perry.

No Wyatt families with sons George and Perry were found in the 1850 Indiana censuses, until the 1850 census of Knox County revealed a Henry Wyant with a son Perry, age thirteen and a son George, age nine. It seemed we had found our family, and perhaps the name had evolved over the years from Wyant to Wyatt.

Then, The People's Guide for Indiana (1874), was found at the Allen County Library. It listed George B. Wyatt, farmer, one mile south of Jamestown, born in Ohio in 1841, resettled Hendricks County 1858, Democrat, Protestant. This was puzzling as it did not match the census information.

Later a stop was made at the Sullivan Museum in Zionsville, Indiana. This museum is dedicated to collecting information on Boone County residents, and has a wonderful library with books relating to the states whose residents came from the east. Through my husband's Aunt Helen I had enjoyed visiting the Sullivan Museum several times. I always found something I was looking for there. This time my inquiry concerned the Wyatt name and the mother lode was found.

An obituary file can be found here, and microfilm copies of early Boone County newspapers. I secured four obituaries of relatives, and an obituary for George. He was born in New Richmond, Ohio, and was survived by a brother, Lon, and sisters, Mary Burgin and Marie Wrightman of Missouri.

The next census search yielded his family in the 1850 Clermont County, Ohio, census. His father was James M., mother Elizabeth, with brothers, Perry, William and Alonzo and a sister Maria. His father was born in Kentucky, his mother in Ohio. Now, I was sure I had the right family. And to think I had thought his father was Henry.

The Family History Center of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints provided further information; James M. Wyatt married Elizabeth Corbin in Ohio in 1840. Much of interest was found in The History of Clermont County, Ohio (Everts 1880), found in the Library of Michigan, Lansing. The Corbin family were very early residents as was a Joseph Wyatt, Justice of the Peace, 1837-1842, and Coroner 1837-1839. Joseph may have been selling out the Eggleston Survey in Monroe Township, which his older brother, Woolford Wyatt, had purchased, since he is found there in 1826 living among neighbors matching those found in Kentucky.

Joseph's will was probated in 1856, naming heirs, James M., Nancy Ransom, Liny Hancock, Elizabeth Morgan and Woolford Wyatt. Jane, his second or third wife, was his executor. Joseph is found in the 1820 Fleming County, Kentucky, census along with brothers, Micajah and Woolford. Kentucky research also found him mentioned with presumed brothers, Micajah, Woolford and Johnson, and sisters, Becky and Jane/Nancy in the settlement of Micajah Wyatt's estate, January 1827.

Graves of Micajah Wyatt (1752-1826), Liny Wing Wyatt (1764-1835) and Micajah, Jr (1794-1857) were found, noted in E*astern Kentucky References*. They are buried about five miles northeast of Flemingsburg in Fleming County, Kentucky, on what is presumed to be the Wyatt farm on Fleming Creek.

Much information was gleaned from a well-stocked Clermont County library in Batavia, Ohio, and from the Mason County Historical Museum and Library in Maysville, Kentucky.

EVERETT
WILLEKE

Would like help regarding the family history of an early American Naval Flag. This linen flag was made sometime between 1783 and 1795. It resembles the flag of Betsy Ross except the 13 stars are not arranged in a circle. These stars are positioned in five rows forming two crosses.. The star group is 3-2-3-2-3 and forms a Christian cross using #2, #7 and #12 vertically and #6, #7 and #8 horizontally. This configuration also forms a cross of St. Andrews with #1, #4, $7, #10 and #13 crossed by #3, #5, #7, #9 and #11. Star #7 is the center of both crosses. This well preserved flag was owned by Jesse and Vera Everett of Liberty Lake WA but is now in the possession of a local family. Contact may be made through this writer.
